CONCEPT NOTE

The purpose of creating Law was not to generate an income rather it had a wider aim. Through the past and in the present it is known for its infinite scope with a tendency of an affirmative acceleration. It was the need of every society, for the development, that the “Rule of Law” came into existence.

When we look at India, we have as many as Thirty Eight Thousand codified laws; this is in addition to the numerous Constitutional Court's Judgments. Each legislation and each law as declared by the Apex court has its specific objective. The Judiciary had been created to provide justice to victims but it was not the idea of “Law” to wait for a crime to happen and then for the Judiciary to act upon it.

Since its inception “Law” is considered to be a noble profession. It is a moral duty of every person to stand against the injustices and to extend a helping hand to someone needy rather than to wait for something unjust to happen to them.

This Symposium is designed to address the young lawyers to the basic ideology and sociology of “law” and to encourage them into questioning how they can help in building a Society as envisioned by our Constitutional forefathers and the Freedom fighters. For the future lawyers, it is very important to enshrine these values in them to secure the basic structure of this Country.
